—BORN OUT OF A HOUSE DIVIDED—

The county's representatives in the Virginia legislature were able to secure the state's first major investment of money west of the mountains, with the Weston location of Virginia's third asylum for the insane. Construction of Weston Hospital began in 1859, but was halted by the outbreak of the Civil War. In June 1861, federal troops seized the gold deposited by Virginia in a Weston bank for the construction project. The gold was taken to Wheeling for the use of the loyalist Reorganized Government of Virginia.

The partially built Asylum and surrounding grounds became Camp Tyler, establishing Weston as an important military post, vital to the control of the well-traveled roads in the area. The completed southern wing of the asylum provided barracks and the main foundation served as a stable.

Lewis County residents were divided in their loyalties during the Civil War. Thomas J. "Stonewall" Jackson had grown up at Jackson's Mill. His service to the South gave heart to the small local elite, the doctors, lawyers, and a good number of the merchants, many of whom had roots in Tidewater Virginia. The greater number of people, the less affluent, were loyal to the Union. They had as their hero U.S. Gen. J.A.J. Lightburn, who had grown up near Weston. The war years passed in alternate occupations by loyal and rebel forces; arguments and violent clashes between neighbors and within families; arrests and internments; and a few bushwhackings.

After West Virginia's creation in 1863, the new state government resumed the asylum project and completed it in 1880. For 50 years, until the beginning of World War I, the mental hospital was the largest single item in the state budget. It made Lewis one of West Virginia's most prosperous counties.

Don't miss!

TRANS-ALLEGHENY LUNATIC ASYLUM

The Trans-Allegheny Lunatic Asylum, constructed between 1858 and 1881, is the largest hand-cut stone masonry building in North America, and is purportedly the second largest in the world, next to the Kremlin. The original hospital, designed to house 250 souls, was open to patients in 1864 and reached its peak in the 1950's with 2,400 patients in overcrowded and generally poor conditions. Changes in the treatment of mental illness and the physical deterioration of the facility forced its closure in 1994 inflicting a devastating effect on the local economy, from which it has yet to recover.

MOUNTAINEER MILITARY MUSEUM

Childhood friends were drafted into their country's service and only one made it home. A graveside promise was made that "I'll never let anyone forget you guys." Ron McVaney vowed to keep his promise. He had collected hundreds of pieces of memorabilia over the last thirty-five years. Upon retiring, he told his wife Barbara that the time had come to share their memorabilia with the public. With the help of the Lewis County Board of Education, Lewis County Commission, and the public, the Mountaineer Military Museum became a reality.

CENTRAL WV GENEALOGY & HISTORY LIBRARY

Hacker's Creek Pioneer Descendants, Inc. is located in the old Horner Grade School. The school was constructed in the early 1900's. It still has the original bell tower with school bell, sidewalk, ball field and Sesame Street art on the meeting room walls. It now holds many, many family stories and treasures. The genealogy collections serve the Central West Virginia area. Many out of state people visit to discover their roots.

—CELEBRATING OUR NAMESAKE—

Thomas Jonathan Jackson known throughout the world as Stonewall Jackson grew to manhood in this county and was raised with the heritage and beliefs of its residents. Orphaned at an early age, he was raised by his fraternal family at Jackson's Mill now part of West Virginia University Extension Service 4-H grounds. You can still tour the historic area of the Mill and stroll the ground this young boy walked. Stop and gaze across the river he played and swam in and wonder if when he uttered his famous dying words, "Let us cross over the river and rest under the shade of the trees", he was thinking of this extraordinary place. Many special events are held at the Mill throughout the year. Every Labor Day Weekend the Mill comes alive with thousands of people when they visit the Jubilee where history and heritage crafts come together for a grand celebration.

—WVU JACKSON'S MILL FARMSTEAD—

WVU Jackson's Mill, home to West Virginia 4-H camping, is a rustic-style conference and event facility in an historic, heritage-based setting a few miles outside of Weston, W.Va. Jackson's Mill is also home to the West Virginia Fire Academy, a one-of-a-kind training facility for volunteer and professional fire fighters from around the state and nation.

LEWIS COUNTY WAR MEMORIAL AND LOUIS BENNETT PUBLIC LIBRARY

The library is housed in the Bennett 17-room mansion built by Jonathan McCally Bennett in 1875. Mrs. Sallie Maxwell Bennett donated the house and her book collection to the Lewis County Commission to be used as a public library. The Lewis County War Memorial is on the 2nd floor honoring Lewis Bennett Jr., a WWI fighting ace who was born and raised in Lewis County.

The library is highlighted on "The City of Weston Historic Walking Tour." Learn more at stonewallcountry.com/historical
